Working with your broker

Having an independent insurance broker or representative to help you look for insurance is a smart way to go. With over 300 insurance companies in Canada, finding the one that makes sense for you can be overwhelming. Your insurance broker or representative has the freedom to shop the field for you and offer professional, objective advice to help you get the best value for your insurance dollar.

And if you have an accident, or lose something valuable or find your home has been damaged, you'll appreciate having a broker who knows how to deal with emergencies.

Your broker or representative also has the unique privilege of really getting to know you. That's important because fully understanding your insurance needs is critical to finding the right combination of value, price and coverage. It's also a relationship you'll want to keep. Life is constantly changing and your broker can help make sure your insurance changes right along with it.

No one has a home or belongings quite like yours. And no one drives a vehicle the way you . That's why every Novex Group Insurance policy is different. A discussion with your broker can help you decide what should be included in your policy.
