The BC Association of Clinical Counsellors Conference Organizing Committee is pleased to invite individuals and teams from around the globe to submit for consideration abstracts for BCACC's 2021 virtual conference, Counselling in a Changing World. Submissions close on March 1, 2021.

The conference is open to counsellors, therapists and allied health professionals, as well as students. Is this something you may be able to share amongst your association?

From June 17-19, 2021, BCACC will bring together counsellors from around the world to discuss the many aspects of counselling in a rapidly changing world and globally connected communities. More than ever counsellors are needed to bring compassion, hope and resilience forward and to hold space for the challenges and grief we are all experiencing. Keynote speakers Dr. Dixon Chibanda and Dr. Nicole Redvers will address these challenges with their signature brand of compassion and insights on community care.

Three conference streams link overarching themes: current and emerging psychotherapies, the changing nature of our relationships, and the global response to trauma and crisis.

We welcome submissions from presenters for:

Oral Presentations: Presenters will submit a 20 – 30 minute pre-recorded video of their presentation which will be viewed by attendees in advance of the conference. The Presenter will then be available on the day of the conference for a live 45-minute Q & A with conference attendees.

Lightning Presentations: Presenters will submit a 5 minute pre-recorded video of their presentation which will be viewed by attendees in advance of the conference. The Presenters will then be part of a “Lightning Talk Power Hour Panel” on the day of the conference – a 45-minute Q & A with conference attendees.

The Organizing Committee encourages established professionals and students alike to engage and participate by presenting at the conference, so please feel welcome to share this opportunity to your networks.
